Enoki

("Japanese hackberry")

Birds flock to eat its sweet fruit in autumn (You can eat it too!).

Enoki(榎) means summer(夏) tree(木) because the large roadside trees provide shade in summer.

Who eats it?

Gomadaracho

("Siren Butterfly")

Larvae eat the Enoki leaves.

Adults are found between May and September.

Larvae of Omurasaki ("Great Purple Emperor") and Tengu-cho ("Nettle-tree Butterfly") also eat the leaves.

Adults drink flower nectar and tree sap
